YIP will address individual, relational/family, community and societal factors following the prevention strategies identified in the CDC's Social-Ecological Model. We will implement multiple levels of the CDC's model at the same time to address and prevent violence prevention and alternatives to violence through the youth and young adults' participation in performing arts, media and photography fun/recreational activities and more specifically, integrating the LST model in the program to prevent gun violence in Alachua County. We understand that prevention is a key element to stopping gun violence before it begins. We have placed concepts of the model as goal in all program activities. Examples include: Looking at the youth's demographics, living/home environment, personal and biological ...
