Proposed Star Center Theatre Project: "Voices for Change: Healing Through Theater"

The Star Center Theatre will address gun violence as a public health crisis through "Voices for Change: Healing Through Theater," a program using performing arts to explore, educate, and empower youth and community members. This initiative focuses on addressing risk factors such as negative influences, substance use, and exposure to violence while fostering protective measures like self-control, family bonds, and social competence.

Key Components:

1. Educational Performances and Workshops:

- Original theatrical works highlighting the causes and impact of gun violence.
- Workshops addressing risk factors like media violence, inequality, and negative social relationships.

2. Youth Empowerment Programs:

- Engaging at-risk youth ...

Preventing Gun Violence in Alachua County Through Theater

The “Voices for Change: Healing Through Theater” project addresses gun violence in Alachua County by tackling root causes and fostering protective factors through community-focused arts programming. Using theater as a platform, the project educates, empowers, and engages youth, families, and the broader community to create long-term solutions.

Addressing Risk Factors:

1. Negative Influences and Relationships:

- Youth programs replace harmful relationships with mentorship and positive peer connections.
- Performances and workshops explore the risks of gang affiliation, substance use, and exposure to violence, offering alternative paths.

2. Inequalities and Media Violence:

- Theatrical works highlight the impact of inequality and violence, inspiring ...
